

Dog Biscuit Recipe

These biscuits make great rewards for your pup when they do the right thing! Dogs learn much better when we use positive reinforcement rather than punishment. Positive reinforcement means giving your dog praise and rewards when they do something you want them to, not yelling at them when they do something wrong.

- Materials:
- 4 tbsp oats
 - 1/4 tbsp boullion granules
 - 3 tbsp powdered milk
 - 3 tbsp cornmeal
 - 3/4 cup wheat flour
 - 1 tbsp nutritional yeast (optional)
 - 1/4 tsp egg replacer or 1 Tbsp applesauce or mashed banana
 - 2 tbsp oil
 - 6 tbsp warm water
 - Large bowl
 - Spoon or fork
 - Something to shape the biscuits (optional)

Directions:

1

Mix all the dry ingredients together in a large bowl (that means everything except the oil and warm water). Make sure they are well mixed!

2

Carefully add the oil and the warm water, and mix the dough together with a spoon or a fork. Your dough should be very thick, almost like playdough. If it's not thick enough you can add more flour.

3

Shape your biscuits! You can do this with your hands, with a cookie cutter, or even with a small glass. Remember to think about how big your dog is. What size biscuit would be the right size for them?

4

Put your biscuits on a lightly greased oven tray and bake them at 325°F for 45 minutes. Let cool before feeding to your deserving pup!

Is your child learning about fractions? Ask them what the measurements would be if they doubled or tripled the recipe. What about cutting it in half?
